Give and Give Thanks, beautiful people. We have some incredible artists we'll be featuring over the next few issues. But for Issue 03 of "What's Your Style," I would like to share a very sincere, personal letter I wrote to Mr. Tinker Hatfield: Vice President for Design and Special Projects at Nike, 1985-present. He is famous for designing most of the Air Jordan and Nike shoes and is a huge inspiration to me and my style.

Read why Nike means so much to me and how they've impacted me and so many other people around the world.

Dear Tinker Hatfield & Nike,

I still remember clearly the day I got my first pair of Air Jordans. September 18th, 1994 (my 4th birthday), keeping cool in the "Just For Feet" store with my mother and two older brothers on a hot summer day in the Milk District of Orlando, FL. That place was like Disney World for an athletically active, basketball-junkie kid from the ghetto — the dopest new athletic and casual Nikes, Jordans, and all other popular athletic sneaker companies were available there AND a half basketball court where kids could shoot around for FREE.

Again, it was my birthday and the new "Powder Blue" 9s were in the stores. My Mother called them "Carolina Blue." That was the first time I had heard of that colorway and I loved how it sounded being that I of course was crazy about the NC Tar Heels and MJ. I was beyond sold on them, so long as my Mother had the 80-something dollars plus tax to make my day. Where she got the money from; I have no idea. Superheroes simply have to make a living too and I was a big part of her life, and she wanted to gift me that assurance in that moment. She did! A size 4T fit me perfectly, and conveniently enough, the entrance to the in-store court was adjacent to the building's exit. So, I laced up my new Js right then and there and replicated as many Michael Jordan "moves" and mannerisms as I could perform on the hardwood. I left that place feeling like my favorite professional basketball player.

From there, I naturally became a fanatic about Nike and Air Jordan shoes, due to that experience, and also because I continued to play the game of basketball (and at a high level as I aged). At nine years old, I began playing AAU for a team called the Orlando Wizards. We had been issued royal blue and white jerseys sourced through a generic garment print shop in town, but my Coaches wanted the newest Nikes on our feet. That was 1999: Year of the Nike Air (Garnett) III. Also known as: the shoe that took the look and energy of our uniform and team to the next level, all in that black/chrome/regal blue colorway. For the next two years, I was the starting point guard and team captain. We would go on to win numerous tournament championships.

It seems that early on in my life, I was fortunate enough to have developed a deep admiration for the Nike brand. It's because I was always around young athletes and it was what every young athlete wanted to wear. It was what every young athlete's sports idol WAS wearing.

The great nostalgia I feel brings about stories that I do not often get to tell, which I love. Like, the time I became the youngest basketball player in the history of Orange County Public Schools Athletics to play for Nike's premier AAU travel team, "Nike Team Florida" at age 16.

Over the next two years, we would go on to win a handful of tournament championships and took home gold medals at an AAU Regional Tournament, at which I was crowned MVP. During that era of my hoop dreams, Nike had me wearing the Lebron III, Lebron IV, Zoom Kobe I, and the Air Huarache Elite. In 2008-2009 for my high school senior season, my University High School Cougars Coaches let me wear the number 11 home jersey when games were played at my high school, and the number 23 away jersey for road games. Our team shoe at the time was the Nike Zoom BB II in Navy and White but I decided to wear the Nike Air Jordan LE 11 Silver Zest, which was essentially an all heather gray shoe with hints of golden yellow, matching the yellow in our jerseys and becoming the perfect color block blend against the navy and white. Every time I wore that shoe on the court, I felt like my favorite professional basketball player again. After averaging 18 points and eight assists per game during my 12th grade year, I was on target to attend schools like Princeton and play for their basketball team on a scholarship. Unfortunately, I got injured in a semifinals district game, tearing my labrum. But, what happens next will help all of this to make sense.

Music immediately found me during my time of healing as I had so much time to just sit and do nothing. No physical activity was allowed for a solid two months. My Stepfather bought me a guitar so I could take guitar class as an easy elective to finish out my senior year. When I say easy, I mean, "I could have slept in that class every day and still gotten a good grade — the teacher did not teach at all, nor was there ever homework. As long as we showed up and jammed with other students in the class and stayed out of trouble, we were pretty much passing." Exams consisted of "show me a song you learned from your peers that you jammed with." This was my introduction to music and somehow, I began to enjoy it and began jamming with others outside of school. I would play my first show, just me and an acoustic guitar, later that year after I graduated.

Fast forward 11 years to now. I am a two-time World Champion Tenor Vocalist, winning the largest A Cappella festival competition on the planet 2018 and 2019 with a group by the name of Six Appeal Vocal Band. As someone who was given the green light to push the limits on style for the band and make sure everyone is looking sharp as a unit, I knew I wanted the group to return to the competition in unified outfits so LOUD, they'd pop cherries. The Nike Sportswear NSW cyber/black/white Tracksuits set us apart this time in Moscow, Russia, and we were definitely ONE of 194 groups from 26 countries. Along with those fits, we all sported a certain Nike shoe that we thought best represented us, yet would still support our high intensity stage performances — 18 shows in nine days.

My older brother, who also sings baritone in the group and is the choreographer, was feeling very olympic upon going back to the The Soviet Union to compete. He went with the Nike Air More Money in gold and black. I decided to go with the everlasting Vapormax Plus in black and white AND the M2K Tekno in black, off-white and obsidian. I am not sure which was better; winning two consecutive times or winning a second time while dressed in Nike gear from head to toe. It was all a dream come true! I love music and sports in the same ways you do, Tink.

Today, I am still in the group and will continue my time with them until the start of 2020. In the new year, my two older brothers and I are starting a new age '90s-conscious R&B & Hip-Hop boyband. To complete our image, we want to wear matching Nike tracksuits and different Nike athletic sneakers which best represent each of us individually.

Plainly and simply put, Nike has been a huge part of our upbringing. The way we were brought up is heard and felt through our music and the performance we will put on night in and night out. As a family we have supported Nike and we want to continue in the best way we know how.

I am asking for your blessing. Please consider. Much love and Respect, Tink.

Give and Give Thanks,

/// @evantaylorjones
http://www.evantaylorjones.com

P.s. We would be forever grateful if you could provide us with three of the same tracksuits (one for each of us) and a pair of Nike shoes in support of us locking in our look. We'd share this great story via our fans forever until the end of time, at every performance, and online. It would be our one and only show outfit for stage and in performance photos.

WITH CAROLYN DENTZ

All The Vibes — The Movement quickly became one of my favorite bands thanks to Pandora's* suggestion on my Slightly Stoopid station a few years back. (*I'm old who cares.) It was the first show I shot when I started working for SIGT in 2017. I was stoked to shoot them but I was new to shooting shows and I feel like the shots taken at The Amp in St. Augustine were basic-bitch quality. My love for The Movement's music has only grown since and once they dropped their latest album, 'Ways of the World', they announced phase 1 and 2 of their tour. No Florida dates? What the fuck? I even saw their drummer at Slightly Stoopid's "Summer Tour" kick off at The Amp and wanted run up to him and give him some shit about no Florida dates but I held back my extra-ness and left the man alone to enjoy the show.

Then it happened — Bands In Town App pops up with a notification that phase 3 of the tour is announced and The Movement is headlining at The Surfer Bar on Oct 23 in Jax Beach! Perfect. Signed up and ready to shoot. I had never shot at The Surfer Bar before. I didn't know if it was inside, outside, concert hall, bar, big, small or what-the-fuck type of venue this would be like to shoot at.

The thing I love/hate about shooting a band whose music I listen to is that I'm really going to shoot a show as a fan. I think when other fans see someone with a camera there are assumptions made that I'm paid to be there and that this is just a job to me and that I don't care about the music. It puts me in an uncomfortable position because I want to respect the space they stand in patiently waiting, not taking bathroom breaks, sending friends to get drinks so they don't lose their spot that they showed up early to get to. The last thing I want to do is show up like some douche with a camera bag and push my way through a crowd for the sake of the perfect shot.

I'm all about the good vibes. If I could be invisible when I'm shooting a show that would BE DOPE. I can do my thing and be in that moment without worrying about stepping on toes or pissing off fans that think I'm there for a paycheck. I had a fan yell at me at a slightly stupid show for accidentally bumping into him when taking a shot from the pit. He said some shit about "he paid to be here, and get the fuck out of my way," or some shit. I looked at his girlfriend and said "you got yourself a real fucking gem." He was a dick but I get what he's saying at the same time. I understand there is a responsibility that comes with a press pass. It's a fucking privilege. And in no way a pass to walk around like I own the joint. If anything it means I need to be extra aware of my surroundings so that I can properly document the scene and absorb the vibe around me and not insert some entitled energy.

The Surfer Bar is an intimate space for a show, no barricade to shoot in front of. You shoot from the audience. AND we were allowed to shoot the entire show!!! This is always a rare and amazing opportunity. I picked a spot to the right of the stage and was able to move around and shoot the Elevators and The Late Ones. This was the first show that I had ever shot where the photographers were ALL ladies!!! YASSSSS. I'm all about the female power!

Finally, The Movement was up next and the place was PACKED. It was a sold out show and at this point I needed to find my spot to shoot from and get comfortable because there wouldn't be much moving around. I noticed three ladies behind me made a barricade around me and one of them said "don't worry girl, we aren't going to let anyone step on you, we got your back. I see you at all the shows you are always respectful to us, we got you." It's that kind of looking-out we all need to do for each other, ladies. It's a tough-dude world out there and we have to have each others backs. That moment set the tone for the rest of my night and I relaxed into my role, got to shoot my favorite band, sing my favorite songs, hear their new fucking album LIVE, SHOOT THE ENTIRE TIME, and embrace the shit out of The Movement's Vibe.

At one point one of the other photographers who was shooting the show leaned in near me and said "Isn't this job the fucking best?" Yessss girl, it really fucking is.

Bless the fuck up.

-Carolyn Dentz.

With Spencer Storch

Spencer's TOP 5 Sets of Hulaween 2019

There are so many musical acts at a giant festival like Suwannee Hulaween. Here are a few of our favorites!

Umphey's McGee

Chicago's Umphey's McGee is the main course for me this evening and I am salivating on my way to The Patch. After acquiring a great spot, the band comes on stage. They hop right to it with "40's Theme" and have the fans jumping and shouting immediately. They play my new favorite songs, "Night Nurse," and "Slacker" for the packed house. A huge solo during "Wife Soup" for lead singer and guitarist, Brendan Bayliss who has grown back his mustache for the event. They are trying out a new light guy and I have to say that Ben Factor is knocking it out of the park. I can hear people around me gasping and pointing at the lights on stage as he moves from pulsing lights to beautiful scenes in great balance. They finish the set with a fiery "Jajunk" > "Ringo" > "Jajunk."

Greensky Bluegrass

We progress to The Amphitheater where Greensky Bluegrass is set up for a heater. Another great intro song as I arrive to them covering Prince's "1999." They make it their own — think Prince in overalls drinking moonshine. Next, their slower song "In Control" is twangy and full of feels. Anders Beck is so good on the dobro he has me floating. His sweet playing in combination with Paul Hoffman's (mandolin/vocals) voice is simply divine. It's no wonder why these guys are on top and I'm am so stoked to get my first experience with them. They pass the baton so well it's inspiring and their flawless play builds mountains of momentum as they climb tonight's Fans "ohh" and scream as he unveils the next section of music in the set. The lasers and bass are more than the folk in my group can handle and split for camp. I take this time to dance my way through the mob and people watch. The hype is real and I feel like this was a set that could convince someone on the fence to enjoy the B- B- B-BASSSSSS.

setlist. "Kerosene" and Springsteen's "Wings for Wheels" help my already floating body to take flight! It's about this time I realize Beck is wearing an Afro wig on the dobro. His bandmate David Bruzza (guitar) shines bright on the dark stage with a long skillful solo during "Leap Year." He shakes the beat and goes off to do his own thing before slowly joining back with the band on their way out of the jam. You can tell these guys know and trust each other. The set ends and I refuse to leave, hoping for an encore I never receive.

Bassnectar

With no time for a camp run we head straight to The Meadow for one of this weekend's headliners, Bassnectar! The biggest producer on the planet starts his rager with "Chicken Dippaz" and also plays "It's About To Get Hectic," "Upside Down," and "Duck Trumpet." There are glowing signs and poi everywhere. Not a free step to walk around so I have to bounce off of people to get where I'm going.

The String Cheese Incident

I head to The Meadow for The String Cheese Incident's first set of the day. They begin with "Dudley's Kitchen" before moving into the popular "Get Tight" which transitions to Stevie Wonder's "I Wish" in the jam portion. I love this! The weather is breezy and the music is on point! "Miss Brown's Teahouse" and "Colliding" round out this delicious set. I hit camp again to recharge (I'm struggling today) before heading back to SCI's second set. Entering The Meadow I have hoopers and jugglers all around me. Music fans are with their friends, laughing and enjoying each other at the set. This is what it's all about. I'm having a blast as they play the afternoon away! The set ends with a whirlwind of songs, "The Wheel" > "Drums" > "Birdland"

> “Wheel Hoss” > “Birdland” > “Howard.” You should know that Nershi (guitar) got his exercise during “Drums” by wildly running around in circles on the stage. LOL!

Billy Stings

The red hot Billy Strings at the main stage. He's a young up and coming bluegrass guitarist who has created quite a stir in the strings scene. His version of jamgrass or “acidgrass” is everything you could want from a flat-picker. His songs are warm and meaningful as well as great for a sing-along. But, that's not why he's so popular. He's rising to the top because of the exploratory approach and his wicked chops on that six-string. I arrive to the set to hear him covering Widespread Panic's “All Time Low.” He's got his long hair braided into cornrows and I have to admit: this is my first ever bluegrass-in-cornrows set I have ever been to. I was tired before I got here and now I can't stop dancing. I have a big smile on my face as this kid leads the full Meadow to the promised land. The breeze blows and the cool air gets a big reaction from the crowd. Arms up and heads back as the band moves into “Old Folks” at Home (Way Down Upon Swanee River)” by Stephen Foster. After filling my heart to the brim they play “Dust in a Baggie.” Here Billy Strings solos with impressive awareness. Like a fan moving to the front of the crowd, he knows right where he wants to go. Not only that, but he has the ability to skip, jump, and dance along the way to his destination without mistakes or hesitation! “Turmoil & Tinfoil” closes this amazing afternoon set. Don't miss this guy. He and his band are on their way to the top. I recommend seeing him before the crowds get too large!

RIOT FEST

It was the 15th anniversary for Riot Fest with a line up that proves Riot is one of the largest metal/punk festivals to date! Calling Douglas Park home for the fifth time during the metal-hardened freight train of Riot Fest, even after co-founder Sean McKeough suddenly passed from a stroke in December of 2016. Business partner Mike Petryshyn has kept the small venue vibe in which they came from, to the expanse of a music theme park that hits you with all-the-feels like a kid on Christmas morning.

The Windy City streamed with the vibrations of art from American Football, Jawbreaker, Cursive, to the ever confronting high priestess of punk, Patti Smith, and the ageless punk-anthem providers, The Descendents! We were running between the five stages trying to catch musical fireflies like The Flaming Lips. Bouncing and weaving through crowds of fans and fest goers excited in anticipation of the next show, we would get to witness locals become legends from Rise Against, to TurnStyle, Slayer, GWAR, and Bikini Kill.

Chicago held true to its namesake during this trip, blustering winds as strong as Orlando Pride. Even though we were over a thousand miles away from home, seeing one Beefy King shirt and over thirty familiar Floridians brought the heat. Ninety two bands, two four hour flights, a plethora of drinks, ride shares, and trains later, and we were back home in Orlando with memories to last a lifetime. See you next year, Riot Fest!

I typically spend well over a hundred hours a month in a metal tube in the sky and less than 24 hours at a time in any one place. I am a transient. A fancy homeless guy. My saving grace is the fact I have friends all over the country. Seeing familiar faces in different places keeps me grounded in an otherwise lonely life. But for five days in October I felt more at home than I have in years. I was at Suwannee Hulaween Music Festival; held annually at the ever-magical Spirit of the Suwannee Music Park in Live Oak, Florida. No air travel needed. And for this extended weekend I had friends from every direction converging to one location. I didn't have to chase them separately; we were all together. Everywhere I turned I saw someone with whom I have a genuine connection. My heart was warm and my soul was full.

In my life of chasing and shooting music I have made friends with a cornucopia of talented musicians. At this year's Hulaween some of these friends were performing. I was lucky enough to attend the festival to photograph the salsa band LPT. My connection with LPT comes via my long time friend, JP, who plays congas in the band. Interestingly enough, I first met JP at the same park during Waneé Festival in 2006. We were at a late-night jam in the campgrounds and a mutual friend told me to "keep an eye on that guy, make sure he doesn't get lost." He pointed to JP, dancing with a glow stick behind each ear and a smile plastered on his face. I laughed and said, "I think he'll be alright." We've been sharing laughs, smiles, and visits to the park ever since.

LPT is comprised of 10 gentlemen currently residing in Jacksonville, FL. They have connected with their roots and play classically inspired Afro-Latin salsa. Their music was a refreshing change of pace from the heavily electronic line up of the festival. They began their set Saturday at 4:15 on the campground stage. While the Latin band came dressed in various Halloween costumes, I, an over-compensating white man, donned my nicest guayabera shirt. Soy latino blanco. As they took the stage only a few folks were in attendance, but it did not take long for the organic rhythms to draw in the masses. The clouds were rolling through but the horns shone bright as the sun. The percussion was a kick-start to our weary minds and bodies. LPT brought the people back to life. Folks came from every direction to dance. It was a natural dance that cleansed our souls of the night before. It loosened our limbs and livened our spirits. And let's face it, it's always entertaining to watch white people pretend to know how to dance salsa.

Smiles spread on every face and gyrations of every hip. The energy of the band was like coffee to the crowd. We were awakened and ready for another glorious night of festivities.

LPT has their own branded coffee beans for sale, roasted by the band. Check it out at — lptsalsa.com/shop

The Quickening

Throughout the weekend I happened upon many friends whom I did not know would be in attendance. The most pleasant of those surprises came late Friday night when I ran into my dear friend Rachel. This should have been no surprise to me as we inevitably always find each other at festivals. Rachel has been singing for years in various projects and that Sunday she was set to perform with her current band, The Quickening. Her voice comes straight from her soul which is as beautiful as she. Having long been enchanted by her singing and having yet to see the Quickening, I knew I had to be there to see what she has been up to lately. My only concern was that I had promised a ride home to Richie of the ShowsIGoTo family and I was not sure if he had a schedule to keep. Luckily The Sober Goat had not earned his title Saturday night and clearly was not anxious to get moving by a certain time. Good thing too, because between Rachel and Richie, I'm picking Rachel every time. She's a fox. ("In French she would be called "la renarde" and she would be hunted with only her cunning to protect her.")

While Rachel had made sure I knew when and where to see her, she failed to mention her entire band and crew would be performing in Wayne's World costumes. And DAMN did they do a great job with it. If you didn't catch my allusion in the previous paragraph; she was of course dressed as Cassandra — red dress, red high heel boots, and even a white bass to complete the costume. (Real Cass doesn't play bass.) On guitar and vocals was Wayne Campbell and with him as always, Garth Algar on drums. Hailing from New Orleans, The Quickening has funk rooted deeply in their soul, mixed with rock n' roll. The steel guitar adds a sly southern smoke to the air while the keys and bass round out the mysterious mystique that is the Nawlins atmosphere. They came out funkini' it up. Then in true NOLA style, they went big but also easy and put me in a trance with their track "Use the Breeze."

To finish out their set they played a medley of tunes from Wayne's World. "Fire" with a "Dreamweaver" segue just as it was in the movie. Then they closed out strong with "Ballroom Blitz." It certainly got my blood pumping and ready for that grueling three hour drive home. And to say the least, they left me with one more reason to get back to New Orleans. Do you know what it means to miss New Orleans?

I love seeing good friends in great bands, especially when they are on the bill with such a stellar lineup. The entire weekend was full of soul-inspiring music and heart-warming love and friendship. It was something I truly needed. I just wish I could take all these friends with me on my daily travels.

EL CAMINO

This is a place of love.

El Camino School founder, John Theisen, is building from the heart. Theisen has worked as a touring musician for more than a decade while raising money and spreading awareness for our local arts community as Campaign Manager at United Arts of Central Florida. He's even featured in a Pitbull video w/ Ke$ha for "Timber" which has over 1 Billion views. In the few short months I've known John and Co., I've become family. El Camino School welcomes you like an old friend with open arms.

The beautiful space on the edge of College Park is designed to be a home to nurture growth professionally and spiritually.

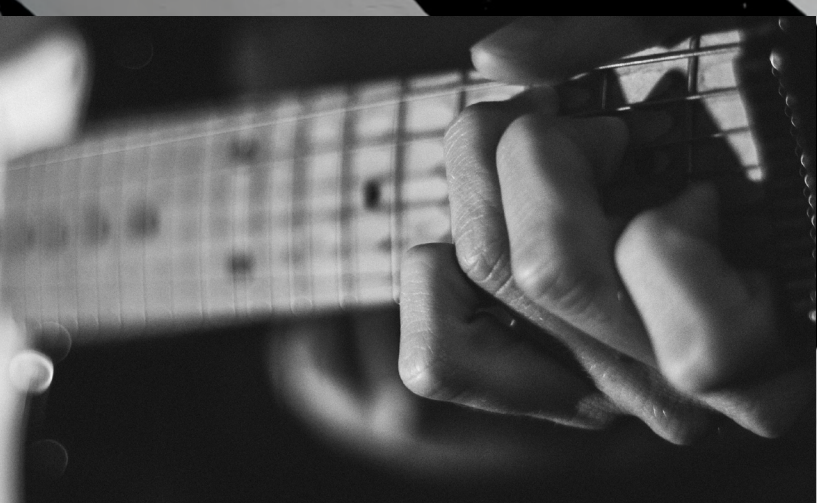

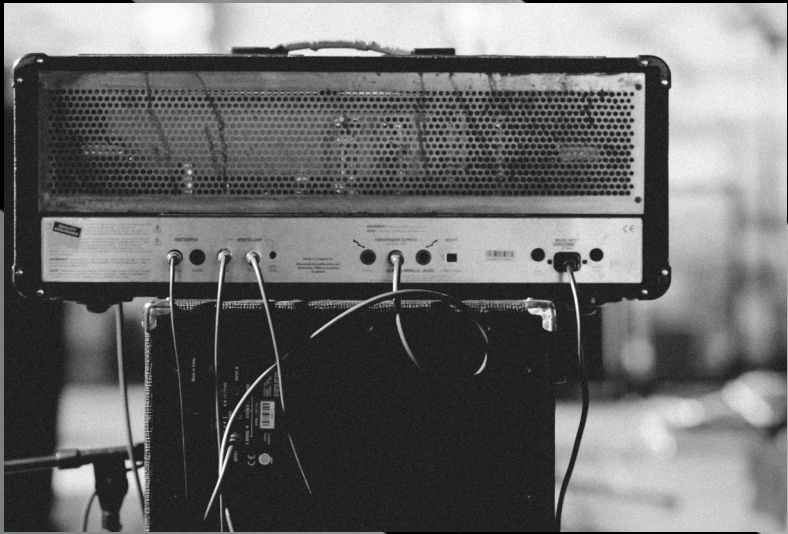

El Camino is the only school in the country that's training and vetting touring guitar techs. Theisen has paved the way for a career that many people can have in the music industry, beyond being a band member. This is a dream job for many kids and young adults who want to explore the world and work with their favorite bands.

In addition to music lessons (vocals, guitar, banjo), there are courses which teach you how to build and repair amplifiers, effects pedals, and even your own guitar (that you can take it home).

The lecture hall is an artistic mecca for meetups, networking events, gallery openings—it's also available for rent for special events. The lounge area is a safe space to study, relax, unwind, and explore your creativity.

Community comes first.

We are all here on this planet to help one another. We're all students to the universe blazing through life trying to figure it out. John Theisen is here to help, heart-to-heart. The primary objective at El Camino School is to create a true collaboration with the community and local music industry in order to impart knowledge for those seeking further understanding, careers, or hobbies.

El Camino School is truly a gift to Orlando and the music community as a whole. If you're looking for the perfect holiday present for a music-loving loved one, give them the gift of music. You can stop by Monday - Friday from 10am - 6pm, visit their boutique gift shop, and purchase a gift certificate for an upcoming course, seminar, or music lessons.

Please visit John, Dakota, and his team at El Camino School of Music & Technology

Jimmy Eat World Surviving

As the sun gets ready to set on another decade, Surviving is released to remind us that after 26 years, Jimmy Eat World is the only consistent, stable thing in this world.

'Surviving' is catchy as fuck, if not a self-aware album. "Diamond" is reminiscent of hits like "The Middle" with reassuring lyrics ("That's how a diamond grows/Give yourself the right chance over time" / "Don't believe them if they try to tell you something different") comforting your angsty inner early-2000's emo. Meanwhile, tracks like "Congratulations" shift focus outward and question the morality of modern politics ("Suspiciously, through editing/The facts are disappearing" / "Too down and tired to wonder/Whose foot you're crawling under").

It all comes together to form a solid album full of catchy choruses and feel-good hooks (Frontman Jim Adkins calls the '80s synth-wave-esque "555" the closest thing that "Surviving" has to a ballad) that will meld perfectly with the rest of their catalog when the band starts touring this month.

BASK III

From the mountains of North Carolina comes BASK and their third album, III. Seven years in the making and a dab over 36 minutes, each of the seven tracks burn slow and hard.

BASK truly excels at songwriting (this time with producer Matt Bayles—Pearl Jam, Minus The Bear, Mastodon). Opener "Three White Feet" is lyrically beautiful — "These hands they ache to tear your flesh from bone / and drag you westward bound in rope"), and "Stone Eyed" is a personal album favorite thanks to its poetic psychedelia ("And I can hear them changing sound") and gorgeous guitar from Ray Worth.

If Pink Floyd was one of your first records, you'll love BASK. Check them out for a natural fusion of stoner rock and heavy Americana that makes you want to toss back some moonshine and vibe.

Grace Potter Daylight

Daylight is Grace Potter stripped down. With a slower pace devoid of electric touches, the album veers away from the pop territory of 2015's Midnight to instead bring the Vermont native's sultry voice to the forefront.

Describing the 11-song set as a journal, Potter serenades the listener with the dissolution of a broken relationship and burgeoning of a love affair. The album's opener "Love is Love" is brash and raw on the complexities of infidelity and love as Potter sings, "Well I promised him I would never stray/ But I'm thinking about you every day."

The album puts Potter's range on display. "On My Way" and "Daylight" are energetic and fierce, while the piano ballad "Release Me" is slow and prayerful. She channels Patsy Cline in "Repossession" where she belts, "And you say that I threw it all away for nothing/But the only thing I threw away was you," into an eddy of twang and smoke.

tl;dr — 'Daylight' is pretty fucking sexy. Check it out.

Wolf-Face – ‘Still Golden’

Spare me your horror stories and anti-lupine propaganda, Wolf-Face is a goddamn national treasure, and the clouds have finally parted on their big fat golden record in the sky. I know what you're thinking: Coyotes in the suburbs? Pigs in the Whitehouse? Wolves on the stage?! Well you can just calm that delicious heart, because Michael J. Wolf and his posse of pop-punking pups are far from the heartless beasts depicted by the human media. On 'Still Golden', Wolf-Face are simply bearing their accursed-soul. Hear instant classics like: "Born on a Blood Moon," a rousing ballad about the harsh realities of bloodlust; "All Dogs Go To Hell," a heart-wrenching glimpse at the fate of these beautiful, misunderstood creatures; and "Dog Whistle," a grizzled warning to all those would-be werewolf hunters (and hapless children) out there. Such things are necessary. Let's be honest, I know it's hard to trust a band of miscreants like Wolf-Face, singing about life as a Wolf-Face, but 'Still Golden' isn't concerned with such pedestrian concepts, and it certainly isn't trying to change your mind about Lycanthropes. At its heart, 'Still Golden' is an album by wolves, for wolves, and if you don't get it... well, I'm sorry. Go look at the moon for a while and think about your life. Now if you'll excuse me, I've got some howling to do! F.F.O. — Debt Neglector, The Dopamines, Me First and the Gimme Gimmes.

ZETA – ‘Mochima’

I am 90% sure "Mochima" is a made-up word, but in the frenetic, riff-addled orpheim of ZETA, I am certain that 'Mochima' means "an engine that runs on chaos" — and run it does. With hammers for wheels and scissors for teeth, a bosom of wailing strings, and a beautiful melody of circuits, 'Mochima' is as complex as it is blunt, crude as it is meticulous, and grating as it is beautiful. Styled after the Mars Volta and At the Drive-in before them, ZETA weave a heady, almost grandiose wall of noise together with Avant-garde authority. Their hard-boiled Venezuelan roots take hold throughout as fourteen blistering tracks paint a picture of mayhem over bolero, blending the signature sear of metal with sultry Latin beats and unbridled fury. On selections like "Casquiere" and "Oaya," burly soundscapes come up against throat-scorching arias. "Puinare" and "Pui Puy" are cascading interludes where no time-signature is safe. And "Venezziola" is a head-banging, hand-drumming fusion of chants and clamor. Alas, the machine is not without elegance, as mesmeric bridges like "Asami" and "Inverno" lend romance, while "Cimarron, Chapparral" is an apocalyptic prose that frames it all. ZETA's success with Mochima is not just the inclusion of these wily, disjointed elements, but their ability to make them work, flow, and drive relentlessly toward a devilishly catchy portrait of a riot in-song. Chévere, ZETA. Muy Chévere. F.F.O. — The Mars Volta, Loma Prieta, Birds in Row.

Suck Brick Kid ‘Salt To Taste’

With tongue in cheek and twang in hand, Orlando punks Suck Brick Kid mark a volatile, long-awaited return with 'Salt To Taste' — a tight ten-track, half-hour banger that sees plenty of grit. Sometimes crass, oft anthemic, and always blistering, the new lineup of the salty six-piece proves that shoutbacks and breakdowns can still strike a major chord in 2019, and, well, given the state of things, may be more apropos than ever. Though you may not know it from the infectious hooks and apparent houseparty occurring in the background of every song, 'Salt To Taste' is a lament — a gloriously cynical ode to the shitstorm of modern life. It's a concept record seasoned to taste with a double entendre ("I Hate U2"), punny references ("Sleeping With Gozer" & "Sofa King"), and plenty of pep and growl assuring us our boys are at back, locked in, and here to shake shit up. Hats off and fists up to Suck Brick Kid for reminding us what punk rock is all about: that it's okay to have fun when all the world's ablaze. F.F.O. — H2O, The Bouncing Souls, & Teen Agers.

RESPECTIVE

"We've been on the media team for Rolling Loud three times now and each time we try to figure out how we can get a different perspective of the festival. We utilized the Insta 360 max to capture the experience of this festival in a totally new way. I was one of two people at the festival using this camera and I really think it is the future"

- Chris Miglioranzi , Co-Founder of Respective /// @Respectable_Youngman

Every festival we try to do something different whether that be using a new type of camera or idea. One reason why a lot of people enjoy our content is that it is all very digestible (short, under 1 minute) and the movement of the camera. One thing I notice is a lot of other shooters in the pit are staying in one spot with their long zoom (which is awesome cause they are probably getting good shots) but we are all over the place we don't just stay in the pit. It's almost like a game where we are trying to see how many different perspectives and lens on our camera before the 3 songs is up.... feels like some mission impossible type shit.

/// @Respectivecollective

Respective or Respective Collection was founded earlier 2019 by two friends and UCF Alumni Christopher Miglioranzi and Simon Wade. They started the company with a goal to empower other young creatives by giving them opportunities to work together and gain experience. Since then they have gone to festivals all across the country including always capturing new and unique perspectives. iiii Points, Miami Music Week, Gasparilla Music Fest, Rolling Loud Miami, Bay Area, Rolling Loud NYC, Lollapalooza, and Rockville.

"Filming Rolling Loud was incredible. I'll never forget my first rolling loud. Standing on stage with legends like Travis Scott and A$AP Rocky felt like a dream. And getting to shoot with some of the best videographers in the game was wild. Felt like the best kind of creative competition where we're all pushing each other to be better."

FESTIVAL CRUISE TIPS

By Randy Cook /// @horns_raised

These days, no matter what your tastes in music, movies, or sports there is a themed event cruise for you. From zombie-filled Walking Dead cruises to EDM, country, 80's rock, heavy metal, NASCAR and—well, you get the idea. The list goes on forever. As a veteran of three music cruises and counting down the days till my fourth—Monsters of Rock cruise in February 2020—here are a few tips to get what I think is the most out of the experience before, both during and after the event.

Once the cruise gets announced (or you are just finding out about it)

Create an account on the site that does the actual booking. You can accomplish this on the pricing page of any given themed cruise. This makes the booking process that much easier when you have all of your information in the system ahead of time. Take a minute to search for an official cruise Facebook page. Here you can find answers to all of the pertinent information for the event as well as like-minded people. Ask questions of the event staff or other festival goers—anything related to the event—before securing your cabin.

Booking:

Book early if you can: themed cruises are annual events and usually sell out quickly. Seniority matters. Past cruisers will get first dibs on rooms. Once the general public sales start, the lower-priced rooms as well as the more preferable cabin locations (mid-ship, mid-level) will go quickly. Prepare for sticker shock — themed cruises can be expensive, but there are payment plans that help alleviate the stress of booking an epic cruise. Traditionally, upgraded suites will come with additional VIP benefits. The additional cost will make a difference in your cruise experience as far as early access to the various seats in the different venues and being first in line for the meet/greet band photos. I've sprung for upgraded tickets on each of my past three cruises, and it was always worth every penny. Three of the best weeks of my life. In order to have the best week of your life, ensure that you have the proper travel documents. The cruise site will be very specific about what is accepted. Do not wait till the last minute to get your passport (renewed or otherwise). Waiting will cost you a ton of money and stress.

Once you have your cabin booked:

Figure out and plan travel to the departure location. Depending on your proximity to the cruise terminal, it is best to arrive the day before and incur the cost of a hotel night so there are no weather-related or unanticipated day-of-event flight or traffic delays. Get on the web to interact with your fellow cruisers. You will find that people will be traveling from all over the country and the world to come to this event. Keep an eye out for any pre-party events (which are usually included in the cost of the cruise). Usually these are the day(s) just before the cruise so it makes sense to arrive a day or two early. If you are making payments: DO NOT miss any scheduled payments. Typically you would surrender your reservation and it would be a total bummer to lose your vacation! Set up a countdown app on your phone to help with the anticipation.

Prepping/packing for the cruise

Don't be shy about being a fanboy/girl of a particular band aboard — dig out that old concert shirt of your favorite bands aboard and wear them proudly — the entire experience is based on and around fan interaction with the band members and from my experience they do take notice! Find that vinyl record or poster that you want to get autographed. It is important to respect the artists and not bother them while they are eating or enjoying the cruise with their people. With that said, you may very nicely ask for an artist's attention and autograph if it's an easy and natural approach. Bring your camera and make sure to have plenty of battery power/storage space for the trip. Bring your camera wherever you go! Photo opportunities are

Selecting your cabin:

Ensure that you have complete names, birthdays, and updated contact information on all of your cabin mates. The booking process will ask for specific information about you and you will need to enter travel documentation/passport numbers for them to have on file. You can book your cabin without this part initially, but it will have to be entered before a specific time prior to sailing. When selecting a cabin location, my preference is to be as close to mid-ship and mid-level as possible. This puts your room central to just about everything and in case you need to stop by the cabin throughout the day/evening, it's an easy chore. This helps alleviate any feeling of the boat rocking (from the waves, not the bands) if you are susceptible to any sort of seasickness. A general rule of thumb is the food is in the back of the boat (restaurants and the open buffets) and the main theater will be in the front of the ship. Usually drink packages are offered ahead of the sail date. These can be considerable savings if you plan to consume mass quantities of alcohol (soda packages are available also).

everywhere! Decorate your cabin door! Theme your spot for a specific band or your crew! A whiteboard can also be a great message system since no one will have cell service. Also, randoms can comment, making it a lot of fun. I'm already planning my design for my 2020 cruise! In the days just before the cruise departs, the show schedule should be released (be prepared that you may not get this until you get aboard). Events like this usually have a ton of overlapping music, but you shouldn't worry as it's typical that bands will play twice over the course of the cruise. It's vital to learn the layout of the ship from the online deck plans. Knowing the fastest way between the different venues can be a lifesaver, especially if your favorite band's set times overlap. You should already know where each stage is before the cruise begins.

All aboard

Prepare to be immersed in festival culture from the moment you step foot aboard the ship! The sights, the sounds, and the people will all be decked out to the theme of the cruise. You are all there for the same reason, so embrace the comradery and make friends! Everyone onboard has at least one common interest. If you didn't before, explore the ship and find out where the different venues are. Be prepared for band schedule changes and take note accordingly once they are announced. I have always carried an extra cruise event schedule and a pen with me to make any adjustments to the daily schedule.

Silly as it sounds — don't forget to eat. The music will be non-stop throughout the day and night so try to plan accordingly. Eating will keep your energy level up to enjoy the most shows you are able to.

After the cruise

Post your photos up and tell your friends how awesome of a time it was and how they NEED to go with you next year. Keep in touch with anyone you traded contact info with onboard — most likely they too will be going again next year. Countdown the days till next year's cruise!

Gallant put out a new album yesterday (Oct 24), 'Sweet Insomnia'. One spin and I knew I was in for something special tonight. The energy explodes immediately once he runs up to the stage. Falsetto out-the-gate and dance moves to match, Gallant's gold mic is shining brightly back towards us filling our hearts. The last time we saw Gallant was at Okeechobee Music Fest year one! What a pleasure to have him home again. I've never heard anyone yell falsetto. Damn. His mic probably turned gold from him singing into it. Three songs in, he's on his knees and we're in his palm. Halfway in, Gallant is feeding us callbacks, growing in difficulty. Orlando gives it to him from our soul. I'm blown away and being filled with peace. His new album, 'Sweet Insomnia' is a must-listen for anyone who's in a new city. been recently compromised by a lover, or has ever had a bit of chest pain. Check out the new title track, featuring 6LACK.

I'm being sandwiched closer to the bar. After a few apologies I'm asked, "are you familiar with Sabrina Claudio?"

Me: "No, I've actually never listened to her."

She grabs my arm and yells, "WHAT?!", smiles and says, "she's amazing isn't she?"

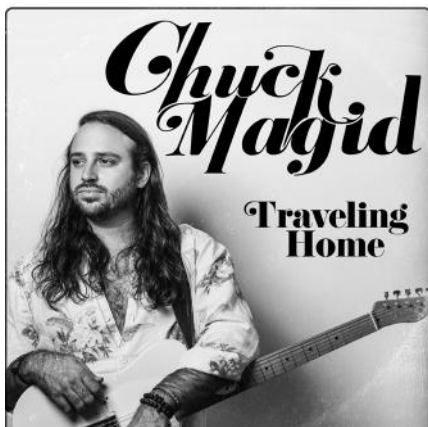

I'm falling in love with this carefully choreographed confidence coming from the stage. I stand out like a tree in an ocean, being one of the few who isn't passionately singing back every word.

I can confidently say, "Yes." I'm a new fan a Sabrina Claudio. "Tonight we're healing." Sabrina Claudio explains her writing process on her new album, 'Truth Is' (Release Oct 6, 2019) — "When I write, I'm very introverted. I write everything down and don't show anyone until I exit the [recording] booth. Then I ask for no feedback please [laughs]." She is nothing short of a pure artist. I predict we won't see slowing down anytime soon. And likely at much bigger venues.

PERRY'S DIDDLES

BY PERRY GOLDMAN

REVIEWING SINGER/ SONGWRITER, CHUCK MAGID'S NEW ALBUM,
'TRAVELING HOME', WHICH COMES OUT DECEMBER 21, 2019

I HEAR A VERY ORIGINAL PASSION AND ENERGY IN THE MUSIC OF MAGID'S 'TRAVELING HOME'.

Perry Goldman is musician, drummer, and singer. Over 50 years performing Rock, Blues, Jazz, Swing, R&B, even country. Studied at Philadelphia Music Academy and is a father to the frontman of Orlando punks, TEEN AGERS. Catch him live with his one of his bands in Central Florida — Straight Jackets, Jive Talkin (Bee Gees Covers), or Willie Cintron & Sounds of the Seasons (Frankie Vallie Covers).

Chuck Magid — 'Traveling Home'

From the very first track of 'Traveling Home,' Chuck Magid's debut solo album seems to take you back to a simpler time. You know, burning incense, strobe candles, and black lights, along with posters of Led Zeppelin, The Who, and Grand Funk Railroad. But you soon realize you're listening to a deeply soulful music blending Rock N Roll, The Blues, and Funk of '70s and '80s. I don't know for sure because I have not had the privilege of meeting Chuck to discuss his influences, but I hear shades of Black Crows, the Allman Brothers, even Jamiroquai, which are some very cool influences. But mostly I hear a very original passion and energy in the music of Magid's 'Traveling Home'.

I dig the vintage grooves and gritty guitar work that evoke the spirits of legendary Rock Power Trios. I just can't put my finger on who those are. And that's the beauty of this effort. 'Traveling Home' might not necessarily take me home, but it does evoke a special vision for me. I envision a sea of thousands of young Rockers swaying and grooving to pulsating music as a single organism at a great festival show I attended (or wished I had). Think of what Led Zeppelin's Plant and Page were saying in the iconic song "Ocean." Once again, very good company to be in.

Love it! Rock On Brutha Magid!

Someday River

It seems to start like a car radio and slips right into a dream. True to their self-described "Psychedelic Folk for Aliens Slow-jam Headbanging," "Are We Free" showcases the majesty to Greyson Charnock's pleas. "All I'm asking is, what's it mean? What's it mean to live and dream?"

Their new lineup locks in some of the tightest sounds this band has ever delivered. The punctuation of the guitar solo resembles the elegance of a ballroom dance.

"It's never lost, it just stays unseen. Left disguised by what's happening. All I'm thinking is, are we free? Are we free if we're listening? Beats me."

Close your lids and hop in. Someday River is safe to swim in. "Hear a train coming. Are we free falling?" It washes away like it begins again.

Hey, Show Goers!

Your December Glowscopes are here! This December there is a Full Moon in Cancer, a New Moon in Capricorn, and we enter Capricorn season on the 21st! Read December's full cosmic forecast below for all the deets. Then, find your zodiac sign and take notes! It has everything you NEED TO KNOW to navigate your December horoscope!

H e l l o , Sagittarius Season! Sagittarius season began on November 22 and lasts until the 21st of this month. This season represents travel, truth, and knowledge. Sagittarius season asks you to view your relationships, beliefs, and desires from different perspectives. The creative energy from this season will bring you lots of new insight if you are willing to look at things differently than you are accustomed to. Sagittarius loves to travel and adventure, so try to get out and do something you wouldn't usually do this season. Also very truth seeking, the season of Sagittarius asks you to take a hard look at yourself and choose what could use improvement. The intention is not to bring yourself down, but to inspire yourself to make simple lifestyle shifts that will lead you to a happier place overall.

Full Moon in Cancer:

This is going to be an extraordinarily powerful Full Moon as the Moon rules the sign of Cancer herself and this Full Moon occurs at exactly 12:12AM EST on December 12 (12/12)! Whew. Can you feel its energy already?! A Full Moon in Cancer is deeply emotional (and healing). It's very important you welcome all your feelings this Full Moon and allow them to intuitively guide you towards where you are headed. As 2019 is coming to a close, you may find yourself feeling very nostalgic this Full Moon. Consider spending time going through pictures from the past year and reminiscing. Journal on where you feel 2020 will lead you. Cancer is represented by the crab, so consider what shell you are outgrowing and what new phase of life you are moving into. Angel number 1212 symbolizes your spiritual growth and shows up to remind you that the possibilities in life are infinite. This number shows up as a reminder to stay positive and focus on your goals and desires and trust that your guides are close by.

New Moon in Capricorn:

There's a New Moon in Capricorn on December 26. The New Moon in Capricorn brings in a grounding energy and is here to remind you time is of the essence. Rather than focusing on things that bring you instant gratification or "five minutes of fame," Capricorn invests her energy in the long term vision and suggests you do the same this moon. This New Moon is the perfect time to set long term goals for 2020. Take time to set long term goals for 2020. Take time to sit alone and journal or meditate and really feel into what you are meant to achieve in the year ahead.

Capricorn season is coming!:

Capricorn season begins on December 21. Capricorn's motherly energy shows up to lead you towards the path of success.

A very independent sign, the energy of Capricorn season will have you seeking some solo time, which for most is much needed after all the holiday get togethers. It's time to slow down and get serious before the New Year's festivities.

Retreat and take time to care for yourself and start setting serious goals for the year ahead. More on this next month!

Partial Solar Eclipse Capricorn conjunct Jupiter:

There is also a partial solar eclipse on December 26. This is a very exciting and serendipitous eclipse. Jupiter is the planet of luck, growth, prosperity. This will be a fabulous time to travel, invest in something new, or start a new venture. This eclipse brings lots of positive potential and abundance to those who choose to tap into their creative energy and focus on their future goals.

ARIES: ♈

Your focus this month should be on career, Aries. It's time to slow down and get clear on what exactly it is you're chasing. You have a burning fire within you that is always up for a new challenge, but it is time to reflect on what the fire within you burns for exactly. Get clear on what that is and you will be very successful this month. When you're not working, take extra good care of yourself. Detox, get a massage, go to bed early, do whatever you need to do to feel clear headed and energized while working! The 22nd of this month should be a particularly great career day. Prepare for celebration! After the 26th, spend quality time with yourself and family. Work will pick back up in the new year.

TAURUS: ♉

Your beliefs will be challenged this month, Taurus, but in a good way! The eclipse on the 26th will specifically challenge your current beliefs around spirituality and self. Allow yourself to explore this! You are stepping into a leadership role in work but leave room to explore other possibilities in the work realm. Once you are comfortable it can be easy to stay where you are, but you have the power and the brains to transition into any role you please. Outside of work, be sure to spend time with friends who you can have powerful conversations with. You will be craving this kind of time! The 27th should be a particularly good day for you.

GEMINI: ♊

Love is fantastic for you this month, Gemini. In fact this whole month will be smooth sailing overall. Live it up as much as you can, as once you enter the New Year you will find work and finances will need lots of attention (in a good way though!) Your wittiness and charm have taken you far this year and this month is a time to celebrate all your hard work. Finances will remain steady. The 12th should be a particularly good money day for you! Take extra care of yourself the first half of this month and make it a point to get some exercise! After the 22nd you will be feeling much more refreshed and rejuvenated.

CANCER: ♋

Things are looking bright this month, Cancer. You've had a busy year and it hasn't been the easiest. It's important to understand that the personal growth you've endured this year is being brought to light this month. Give yourself permission to lighten up. Things are starting to feel good. Expect to find yourself dreaming BIG this month. Your creativity will be at an all-time high and it's important to start formulating a plan to actually act on these ideas! You are more powerful than you believe, Cancer.

LEO: ♌

It's time to show off to the world how much you have grown and evolved this year, Leo. This month will be happy for you and job opportunities will rise if you show off your personal yearly progress. You need to keep yourself busy this month! But don't travel if you can avoid it. Explore how you can love yourself and others more. This is your agenda this month! Your true key to success is feeling confident in yourself, even when others may not approve

VIRGO: ♍

You are already very comfortable with yourself, Virgo. This season is asking you to dive even deeper and uncover more about yourself and your greater purpose. You like structure in your life and review your options carefully, much like fellow Earth sign, Capricorn. Take time this month to ground deeper within yourself and make a plan for the future. Where are you going? Who are you going with? What projects are you working on? You know yourself well enough to answer these questions, but you may surprise yourself with some answers as you dive deeper within, and will find yourself making plans that light you up for the months to come. Just make sure you begin taking action ... only you hold the power to do it,

LIBRA: ♎

You are the queen of balance, Libra. This season is giving you permission to tip the scale a bit and give more attention to yourself. It's time to check in and re-center in order to continue delivering justice and empowerment to the world around you. You must recharge your batteries in order to not burn yourself out. The world will be okay while you retreat for a bit. As you recharge yourself, your vision for the outer world and your role in it will grow and expand. Once you are charged up you will have all the energy to act on your vision.

SCORPIO: ♏

You are in your natural state for the You love to explore the spiritual side of life, Scorpio, but this month is asking you to come down from the clouds and ground yourself for a few days. Focus on the physical things in your life. This is a good time to focus on health goals. This is also a great time to think about where you want to go career-wise next year. You hold so much power, but you tend to overanalyze things. Spend some time alone and really get clear on what you want and commit to getting it. There is no need to overthink so much, love.

SAGITTARIUS: ♐

The most adventurous of the signs, you love to explore new places and meet new people, Sagittarius. This season is asking you to be more adventurous within yourself. Reflect on all the places you traveled, people you met, and activities you completed this last year. What do these all say about you? Where are you going next? How does this relate to your life mission? Your ticket to success is to truly know yourself and understand why you take yourself to the places you do. You already know it.

CAPRICORN: ♑

You find home this season, Capricorn. Now is a time to realign with yourself and think about what you want to do with this next year. Figure out what areas of your life are in need of some discipline and sort out a list of your top priorities. Now is a great time for you to get organized. Dream big and know that nothing is off limits. You sometimes feel like there is not enough to go around, Capricorn, and that is simply not true. Lean into the limitless energy available to you and make a plan to make your dreams come true.

AQUARIUS: ♒

Your people need you right now, Aquarius. You have a grounding energy which makes people feel calm in your presence but at times you can lash out at the people around you. This month provides an opportunity to reflect on those actions and learn to choose differently. Check in with your integrity and reflect on how you can honor the voices of those around you. You may be pleasantly surprised at what you discover when you give someone new the time of day to share their ideas with you. Tune in and listen carefully!

PISCES: ♓

This season doesn't particularly land with you, Pisces. It's all about planning your long-term vision, and you are a very go-with-the-flow and see-what-happens kind of person. You don't necessarily integrate structure and order into your everyday life. Tap into the energy of this season (and especially the New Moon) and experiment with it. Try creating a plan or schedule around a goal of yours and follow through! You may learn that Capricorn is trying to show you a greater part of yourself that you are capable of tapping into. Put your deep visionary side to work and take time to write out what you want to achieve.

High-ideas By Big Tim Murphy

Go to Red Lobster — Order the endless shrimp w/ baked potato.
Eat the inside of the potato.
Order shrimp scampi. Remove shrimp. Pour garlic butter in potato, fill with shrimp. Take it home. Right before you evacuate the shrimp inside you, set the oven to bake at 200 degrees and put the potato in there. It'll be perfect by the time you're out.
